

Selling Nutritional and Herbal Supplements

- Supplements can have significant effects on physiology and must be used rationally. We provide nutritional counseling and make individual recommendations regarding use of these substances in order to upgrade the quality of foods in a client's diet and to supply nutrition to support the physiological and biomechanical processes of the human body. Although these products may also be suggested with a specific therapeutic purpose in mind, their use is chiefly designed to support given aspects of metabolic function. Use of nutritional supplements may be safely recommended for patients already using pharmaceutical medications (drugs), but some potentially harmful interactions may occur. For this reason, it is important to keep all your healthcare providers fully informed about all medications and nutritional supplements, herbs, or hormones you may be taking.
- You are under no obligation to purchase nutritional supplements. As a service to you, we make nutritional supplements available. We purchase these products only from manufacturers who have gained our confidence through considerable research and experience. We make these products available to ensure quality. You are not guaranteed the same level of quality when you purchase your supplements from the general marketplace. We are not suggesting that such products have no value; however, given the lack of testing requirements product quality varies widely. If you have concerns about this issue, please discuss them with our staff. I have read and understand the above statements.

Functional Medicine Laboratory Testing Informed Consent

The purpose of functional medicine laboratory testing in our office is to evaluate nutritional, biochemical, or physiological imbalance and to determine any need for medical referral. These lab tests in our office are not intended to diagnose disease. This office utilizes conventional lab tests as well as functional medicine assessment.

Functional medicine assessment is designed to assist our doctors and other healthcare providers in finding the underlying causes of your condition. Functional medicine has evolved through the efforts of scientists and clinicians from the fields of clinical nutrition, molecular biology, biochemistry, physiology, conventional medicine, and a wide array of scientific disciplines. Functional medicine evaluates the body as a whole, with special attention to the relationship of one body system to another and the nutrient imbalances and toxic overload that may adversely affect these relationships.

Your medical physician may or may not agree with the necessity for—or our interpretation of—these tests. If you have any questions or concerns, please discuss them with our doctors.
